ABSTRACT

In this article we present information about the activities that were implemented in the project “Electronic Archive of documentary heritage of the Balkan wars”, to build a database of archival documents, photographs, new traced and researched archival materials. Information will be provided about the form and type of documents with which every institution-partner in the project will take part. The article is emphasized on the need this digital archive to include other similar institutions nationwide, and become part of the European digital library – Europeana.

Keywords: Digitization of cultural heritage, Electronic archive of documents, photographs and more, Archival materials, Libraries, Museums, Galleries.

I. Introduction

Protection and preservation of our cultural and literary-historical and documentary heritage are particularly relevant today. Despite the absence of a national program for the protection of literary heritage and plans for digitization, in recent years the coordination between Bulgarian libraries and similar institutions is done better in the form of consortiums that are applied in programs specific libraries and marks the beginning of a national network of electronic catalogues.

Digitization of book collections as a means of protection is one of the priorities in the development of Bulgarian libraries. The preconditions for this process have long been available - these are rapidly increasing number of Internet users in the country, the development of technology, more and more difficult to save and protect the growing book fund.

Excited by these issues and the idea to provide comprehensive access to documentary heritage, several similar institutions joined forces and applied in a competition Fund "Scientific Research" of the Ministry of Education, Youth and Science "Financing of basic research and scientifically applied research in the priority areas of “Cultural Heritage” and the scientific field of “Culture and Art, History"- project "Electronic archive of documentary heritage of the Balkan wars."
